“ I am so sorry to hear about Candi. I haven't seen her since she was a young girl. We didn't spend much time together as a family as I moved on with life. But I remember her being a very happy child, those are my memories of her. Condolences to her son. RIP She was my half-sister.

“ Candi was a very special person. She was always so happy and making people laugh and smile. She was always so funny. She was very special to my dad. She called everyday to talk to him. Especially after my mom passed. She was there for my dad when he needed her. Made him laugh and smile. My dad and candi would always joke with each other. She was a great listener and gave great advice. When i had lost both my parents. I went to her to talk to about stuff that i missed talking to my parents about. She was like a close aunt to me. My dad always thought of her as his little sister. She was always there when u needed her. Im going to miss her phone calls. I remember one time i picked her up to go lunch and her favorite country song came on in the car and she was dancing in the car. She always loved getting out and going places. Going to miss Candi.

“ Well ma, I'd been putting this off case it was just easier to distract myself helping Rob. But, now the week's over and Robs back on his way to Arizona so it's time. Weather Rob and I were "making napalm in the garage" or staying up far too late playing music, you were always there supporting us and reminding us that we weren't the adults we thought we were. Thank you so much for your support and the genuine care you showed. I love you ma, rest now.

“ I have so many memories to choose from some hard,some sad,some happy,some funny but all are left for me to remember as I'll always remember you,when I met you you replaced a sister profile I had lost,a friend,and somehow according to one of your doctor's you became my mother.. LOL
Even though I'm older than you.
So rest in peace.....my Sister,Friend and Mom...I'll always love you. you'll be missed but NEVER Forgotten

“ I only actually met Candi a couple times, but I've been a part of many phone conversations. One thing that you can't help but notice about her is how much she loved to talk and tell you about different parts of her life. She had a huge bank of memories that she could go on about for hours given the chance, which I think was her way of preserving and appreciating all of the good times she had... sort of reliving them in her head to bring herself that same joy she felt during those times. I think we could all learn from Candi.

She loved to give her son, Rob, a hard time about almost anything, and bringing up past mistakes just to embarrass him. Honestly, I think that just showed how much she loved him and how proud she was of the man he has become... but she could never just say that, so giving him shit was more fun ;)

I wish I would have had more time to get to know her, but I'm sure she will continue to live on forever through stories, and I will be able to get to know her through the eyes of others :)

“ I remember one time when my (chosen) brother, Don and I had been growing our hair out as teenagers, we had asked my mom for something, and she said "only if I can cut your hair!" And we replied with "well, just this once" or something like that.

It became an inside joke, every time she saw us she was threatening to cut off our hair. Haha.
